WELCOME FENWAY PARK'S 75thANNIVERSARY

elcome to friendly Fenway Park and its 75th anniversary year. Generations of families have come here from all over New England since Fenway Park opened in 1912. A family atmosphere has grown along with the tremendous fan support over the past

Fenway Park has undergone cosmetic changes throughout the years, but the playing field is about the same today as it was in 1934. That winter new owner, Thomas A. Yawkey, put the park through a major reconstruction phase, and also began to rebuild the team back. and also began to rebuild the team back into a league power.

In 1936 the 23-foot-tall screen was put above the famous left-field wall, the bullpens were constructed in front of the right-field bleachers in 1940, and arc lights were installed in 1947. After the 1975 season, another construction project resulted in the messageboard in centerfield, plus a rebuilding of the left field wall, with padding added around the outfield walls as a safety measure. The luxury suites were built atop the grandstand roof in 1982-83, and improveduring our 75th anniversary year.

ments were made in restrooms and the ticket office this past winter.

The Red Sox have been an important franchise since the American League was founded in 1901. The team's nickname was the Pilgrims then, and home games were played at the Huntington Avenue grounds where Northeastern University now stands. In 1907 the Red Sox nickname was adopted, and then in 1912 the new Fenway Park became a

Age: 43, Turns 44 May 22; Born: May 22, 1943, Natick, Mass. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 178. Green eyes, Blond hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: No. Andover, Mass.

This is Walt's 11th season as a Red Sox coach. He is the club's hitting instructor and first base coach, a role he was given by Mgr. John McNamara last year. A keen student of the game, Hriniak devotes many hours instructing and assisting Red Sox players. He is still recognized as one of the best batting practice pitchers in baseball despite surgery for shoulder problems.

Before joining the Red Sox in 1977 Hriniak put in 16 years as a player, coach and minor league manager. He managed Montreal's rookie team at Lethbridge, Alb., Can. in the Pioneer League in 1976 after starting the year as a coach with Denver. In 1974-75 he was first base coach with the Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown team in the NYP League.

Hriniak signed a reported $50,000 contract with the Milwaukee Braves in 1961 after an outstanding career at Natick, Mass. H.S. He was an All Scholastic choice as a shortstop, football quarterback and hockey center. His 13-year pro playing career included two years with the Braves and Padres as a catcher in 1968-69.

He conducts a hitting school for youngsters for several weeks in the off-season

COACH

JOSEPH MICHAEL (JOE) MORGAN #35

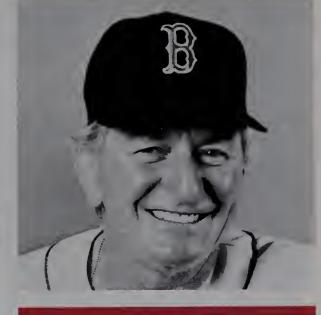

Age: 56; Born: November 19, 1930, Walpole, Mass. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180. Green eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Left. Home: Walpole, Mass. Married Dottie Glebus. Children: Cathy 10/15/58, Joe Jr. 7/17/63, Bill 7/7/64, Barbara 12/23/66.

Now in his 36th professional year, Joe joined the Red Sox as first base coach in 1985 after spending two years as a Boston scout. He became bullpen coach in 1986 and then took over the third base coaching position in 1987.

Morgan joined the Red Sox organization in 1974, and managed Pawtucket from 1974-82. In 1977 he was voted International League Manager of the Year. Before joining the Red Sox, he began his managerial career in the Pittsburgh system. Morgan managed at Raleigh (1966-67), York (1968-69), Columbus (1970) and Charleston (1971 & 1973). He captured Manager of the Year honors in 1966, 1969 and 1973. Joe was a coach with the Pirates in 1972.

A graduate of Walpole High School and Boston College (1953), Joe signed with the Boston Braves organization in 1952. He spent 15 seasons as a minor league infielder-outfielder, with three .300 seasons. Morgan had short stints in the majors with the Milwaukee Braves and Kansas City A's in 1959, Philadelphia and Cleveland in 1960, Cleveland in 1961 and St. Louis in 1964.

MANAGER

JOHN FRANCIS (JOHN) McNAMARA #1

Age: 54, Turns 55 June 4; Born: June 4, 1932, Sacramento, Cal. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 175. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Natick, Mass. Married Ellen Goode.

The Red Sox overcame the dire predictions of most baseball experts to win the 1986 American League pennant and come within one out of the World Series title in the hectic seven-game meeting with the New York Mets. John McNamara's perseverance, faith in his pitching staff and desire to win were important ingredients in the team's success formula.

In July McNamara was rewarded with a twoyear extension of his contract and a selection as a coach on the American League All-Star team. At season's end he was voted A.L. Manager of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America and co-Major League Manager of the Year with the Astros' Hal Lanier by The Sporting

The Red Sox finished 95-66 to win their first Eastern Division title since 1975 and came from a three-to-one deficit in games to overtake the California Angels for the right to meet the Mets. McNamara used 55 different batting orders during the regular season, 22 different starting players and 10 different starting pitchers. Despite the loss of key members of the pitching rotation (Bruce Hurst, Al Nipper and Oil Can Boyd) for lengthy periods, McNamara's Red Sox moved into sole possession of first place to stay on May 15 and fought off each challenge the rest of the

On Oct. 18, 1984 McNamara was named the 36th manager of the Red Sox. He replaced Ralph Houk who retired after four years at Boston. McNamara is starting his 14th full year as a major league manager. Only Sparky Anderson (Detroit) and Gene Mauch (Angels) hold seniority over him among A.L. managers McNamara managed the California Angels for two seasons. In 1984 the Angels finished in a second place tie with Minnesota at 81-81. In 1983 injuries crippled the Angels and they finished tied for fifth at 70-92. They were in first place as late as July 10, 1983.

McNamara was a minor league manager for nine years in the Kansas City A's organization before being named a coach with the A's in 1968 when they moved to Oakland. He has been in the major leagues ever since as either a manager or coach. John made his major league managerial debut with Oakland when he replaced Hank Bauer, Sept. 19, 1969. He led the A's to a second place finish in 1970.

COACH

WILLIAM CHARLES (FISH, BILL) FISCHER #34

Age: 56; Born: October 11, 1930, Wausau, Wis. Ht.: 6-0; Wt.: 210. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Council Bluffs, Iowa. Married Valeria Hager.

The Red Sox had one of the best pitching staffs in the majors in 1986 and Bill Fischer was a key reason. Bill is the club's pitching coach for the third year. He is a diligent worker who advocates "throwing strikes."

Fischer came to John McNamara's staff from Kansas City where he had been a minor league pitching instructor in 1984. Prior to that assignment Bill was the pitching coach for Cincinnati where he worked with McNamara in 1979-82 and with Russ Nixon in 1983.

Fischer was signed by the Chicago White Sox in 1948. His pitching career lasted 20 years, which included nine seasons in the major leagues. Along with the White Sox he also pitched for Detroit, Washington, the Kansas City A's and Minnesota. Bill served in the Marine Corps for two years (1952-54).

Fischer is known for his outstanding ability to throw strikes. He holds the major league record for most consecutive innings without giving up a base on balls, 84.1. In 1965 he pitched a 1-0 shutout for Indianapolis in which 70 of his 90 pitches were strikes.

Bill was a scout for the new Kansas City Royals from 1969-74 and was their minor league pitching instructor from 1975-78. After his stint in Cincinnati he returned to the Royals in 1984 serving in the same capacity as he did when he left. In 1976 he received the Ewing M. Kauffman Award for his outstanding contribution to the Kansas City

RACHEL W. (RAC) SLIDER

Age: 53; Born: December 23, 1933, Simms, Tex. Ht.: 5-B; Wt.: 160. Brown eyes, Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: OeKalb, Tex. Married LaMena.

1987 is Rac's first major league season. It was a well-deserved promotion for Slider, who will be the Red Sox bullpen coach. He spent 34 straight years in pro baseball, the last 26 in the Red Sox system, as a player, manager and instructor.

Instructor.

Last season Rac was a roving instructor in the minor league system after 21 consecutive years as a manager. He managed AAA Pawtucket in 1985 and AA New Britain in 1983-84. He led New Britain to the Eastern League playoff championship in 1983, and produced pennants at Greenville, S.C. (1970) and Winter Haven (1979). Slider was named manager of the year in 1970 and 1979.

He originally came up through the Kansas City A's farm system and had a major league trial with the A's in the spring of 1959. Rac's best years as a player were 1955 (.320 for Pampa in the West Texas-New Mexico League) and 1961 (.300 for Honolulu, PCL). He was traded to the Red Sox organization in 1962, and played two more seasons before starting his managerial career at Harlan, Ky. in the Appalachian League in 1965.

Slider is a 1951 graduate of James Bowie H.S. in Simms, Tex. and still lives and ranches in East Texas in the off-season.

A string of wretched seasons set the stage. The Red Sox of the early sixties were alternately pathetic and foolish. They almost squandered the great New England baseball legacy and did their best to drive Tom Yawkey from the game. Boredom, more destructive than anger, prevailed. People just didn't care anymore. The pits were achieved late in '65 when they drew 461 and 409 fans for consecutive dates with the Angels. They began to stir late in '66, but it didn't exactly induce a storming of the gates. Then along came Dick Williams.

ing across a summer sky, and when it had passed there was a lovely, romantic glow that left the entire region feeling awfully fine. If you were there, it can never be surpassed. It was not merely baseball. It was love.

The lyric "Impossible Dream" festival has become synonymous with the epic feats of Carl Yastrzemski. Gentleman Jim Lonborg became a folk hero as well, and the manipulations of Dick O'Connell and Haywood Sullivan were critical. But the decisive factor was Williams. He bullied them to that pennant, stomping egos and burning bridges in his path.

Two little noted occasions in that sweet odyssey are worth recalling. On April 3, when they were still in Winter

GREENWELL, BENZINGER and BURKS

Greenwell, who spent the last portions of the 1985 and 1986 seasons with Boston, has displayed power and has been one of the team's most productive hitters. Burks, though suffering through a couple of ups and downs offensively, has shown pop in his bat and speed on the basepaths while displaying consummate skill in the outfield.

Benzinger, a switch hitter, has shown versatility in the outfield, playing both center and right, and has sprayed line drives around when he gets in the lineup.

And it all has happened faster than Greenwell, Burks and Benzinger had envisioned.

This is Greenwell's third year with Sox. The previous two years he was ate call-up, managing a total of 21 hits 66 at-bats (.318) with 4 home runs and 12 RBI after two very productive easons with the Pawtucket Red Sox.

LIS BURKS

"I was hoping I'd get at least 150 atbats, mostly as a pinch hitter, but maybe helping out at three positions (left field, right field, designated hitter).

"But I didn't play in the first 15 games, and I only had 6 at-bats. It made me a little nervous. I had some success coming off the bench two years before, but it's tough coming off the bench when you're used to getting a lot of at-bats (in the minors).

"All at once I was sitting on the bench. I accepted my role, but when I was 1 for 11 and hadn't had a shot yet, I was a little nervous. I wondered if I'd stay around."

But Jim Rice was injured in late April and Greenwell got to play. And he produced. In his second start, Greenwell went 3 for 5, including a home run, with 4 RBI. The next day, he was 2 for 3 — a double and a homer — and had another RBI. Then it was a 2 for 4 day. In a stretch of three games in early May, Greenwell went 6 for 10 with 2 homers, 2 doubles and 10 RBI.

At the All-Star break, Greenwell was batting .307 with 10 homers and 43 RBI in only 166 at-bats.

"I never expected to have this many at-bats," said Greenwell as the All-Star break approached. "I was looking at 150 for the season. But the way things have gone, if I could get another 150, I might put up some real good numbers. I've always had confidence, but this has given me more."

Burks, meanwhile, was expecting he'd be in Pawtucket all year for his first taste of Triple A ball. But after strong showings in winter ball and spring training, he has been the starting centerfielder for the Sox pretty much every day since his promotion from Pawtucket.

"I was very surprised when I got called up. I expected to spend the year in Pawtucket, and if I did well, maybe I'd get called up sometime, probably late in the season. No way I expected to get called up this soon."

Burks, who hit .273 in Double A a year ago, broke in with the Sox with a bang, but then suffered through a few slumps. Manager John McNamara, not wanting his promising youngster to take a beating mentally as he struggled at the plate, benched him a couple of times to let him catch his breath.

At the All-Star break, Burks had some impressive numbers — 13 homers, including a pair of grand slams, and 13 stolen bases. His average was a solid .252.

"Where are they now?"

JIM LONBORG

Wore No. 16, 1965-71

by Dick Dew

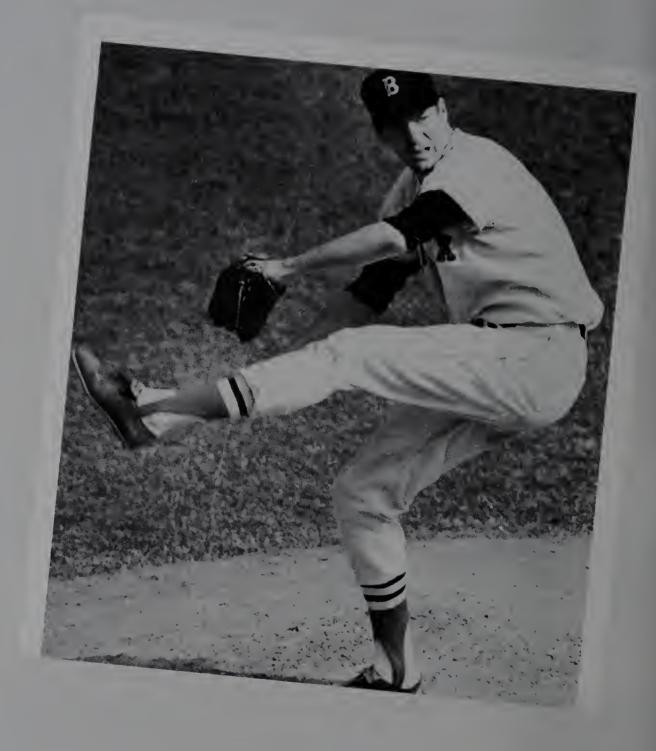

THEN: He ran off a 22-9 record, pitched the dramatic clinching final regular season game, became the first Red Sox pitcher ever to win the award named for Boston hurler Cy Young, and posted a phenomenal World Series record by winning his first two starts, allowing just one run on only four hits over 18 innings.

Jim Lonborg was the toast of the town back in that 1967 Impossible Dream year. He went on to pitch for 15 years in the major leagues, compiling a 157-137 lifetime record with the Red Sox, Milwaukee and the Phillies.

Lonborg understandably looks back on that 1967 season as the peak of his baseball career, but he'd still like to have emerged the victor while pitching on short rest in the decisive seventh Series game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I was very pleased with the way things came out in the regular season. Everybody worked very hard that year, everyone contributed in his own way and of course we got some great performances out of Carl Yastrzemski.

"Dick O'Connell made some good trades, picked up a lot of help, and Dick Williams gave us a forced introduction to a basic style of baseball. Everybody was better for it.

"I don't think we anticipated the outcome. Dick Williams' philosophy was to isolate each game. If you're pitching one day, you concentrate and accomplish what you have to do at the moment.

"All of a sudden, you find yourself in it. And I don't think there's ever been a pennant race like that, four teams still in it to the last few days. Chicago was in the driver's seat, got beat by the worst team in the league, and it was wide open again.

"Igot into a groove. The World Series is a great time to get hot," Lonborg said of a season in which he had an impressive 3.16 earned run average and struck out 246 batters to rank second only to the legendary Smokey Joe Wood for most strikeouts in a season by a Red Sox pitcher. His winning the Cy Young Award was not duplicated by a Boston pitcher until Roger Clemens did it in 1986.

"The big difference has been the pitching. In the minors, on 3 and 2, you'd see a fastball. Not always here. You see breaking balls even on 3 and 0 and 2 and 0. The 0-fers are tough, but you just have to learn from them.

"The important thing in the big leagues is keeping the right attitude and being consistent. That's what I'm trying Benzinger wasn't trying to do anything except open a few eyes in training camp this year. He had no illusions about making the team.

But he came close. Benzinger was the surprise of camp playing first base and right field as well as a little center field.

"All I was hoping for in spring training was to show them I could play, so that maybe when they needed to call someone up, they wouldn't hesitate to call me up," said Benzinger, a quiet 24-year-old from Cincinnati, whose two previous seasons in Pawtucket had been marred by injuries.

Benzinger, though, knew he needed a chance to play in spring games. He got that chance, and the more he played, the better he played. The impressions he made stuck.

"I don't think I surprised myself that much, but I think I surprised them.'

Benzinger was one of the Sox' last cuts, but he left camp with confidence. After a slow week or two with the PawSox, he caught fire, jumping into the top 10 in the league in hitting, home runs and RBI. And when Bill Buckner went on the disabled list on June 19, Benzinger was in the big leagues.

While platooning some in right field, Benzinger, a 6foot-1, 185-pounder, batted .288 with one homer and 10 RBI his first month in the big leagues.

"I've learned a lot since I've been here. I've been to a lot of ballparks for the first time, like Yankee Stadium, and I've learned that when you get here, everyone figures you're a big leaguer and that you have ability.

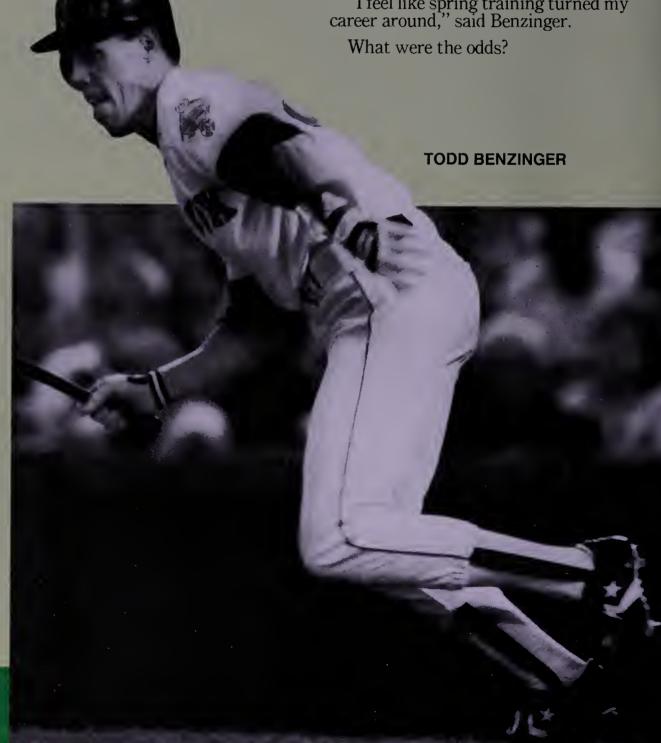

"If you want work, it's up to you. No one's telling you to stretch at a certain time or run at a certain time. You're just expected to get yourself ready, and after seeing guys like Don Baylor and Wade Boggs coming out to the park so early, I know that you have to have a good work ethic to succeed.

Which is not a problem for Benzinger. He worked especially hard in the offseason preparing himself for training

And the work has paid off.

A year ago, he was one of six out-fielders in Pawtucket, maybe fifth or sixth on the totem pole. Now, he's in the big leagues with a bright future.

"I feel like spring training turned my career around," said Benzinger.

RED SO RED SOX GAMES COME TO YOU ON RADIO AND T.V. BY WAY OF CAMPBELL SPORTS. TV-38 AND NESN CABLE.

ed Sox fans will once again receive coverage on both radio and television in 1987 via one of the most extensive broadcast schedules in the major leagues.

The Campbell Red Sox Baseball Radio Network is again carrying every game with Ken Coleman and Joe Castiglione sharing the microphone for the fifth season. The partnership between the Red Sox and Campbell Sports is also entering its fifth year and is slated to continue at least through 1990. WPLM-FM in Plymouth, Mass. is the flagship station of a network of over 75 stations which blankets New England.

Coleman has more than 36 years of broadcasting experience and has covered the Red Sox on radio and TV for 18 years. The Quincy, Mass. native began his career broadcasting the Rutland (Vt.) Royals of the now defunct Northern League. He then went to Cleveland where he did the Browns (NFL) for 14 seasons and the Indians for 10.

In 1966 Ken returned to Boston for his first stint with the Red Sox (1966-74) on both radio and TV. After covering the Cincinnati Reds on TV for four years, he came back to Boston for the 1979 season on radio, and has been here ever since.

Ken has announced seven NFL championship games on network television and also did the 1967 World Series on NBC. He has been involved with the Jimmy Fund since 1966, and is now its coordinator for donor relations.

Castiglione is in his fifth season on Red Sox radio. Like Coleman, he previously covered the Cleveland Indians (1979-80-82) on both radio and TV. He worked the Milwaukee Brewers' games on cable TV in 1981. The Hamden, Conn. native has announced the Cleveland Cavaliers (NBA) on cable, and has done college basketball for New England Sports Network the past three winters. He is a graduate of Colgate University.

Every Red Sox game will also be shown on television this season, with TV-38 carrying 75 games and New England Sports Network (NESN) showing 85 on cable. The other two games are scheduled on network television.

TV-38, along with its New England network, is in its 13th season of Red Sox coverage, with Ned Martin and Bob Montgomery together for the sixth year.

Martin has been covering the Red Sox on TV and radio for 27 consecutive seasons, including the last nine with TV-38. Only Ernie Harwell of the Tigers (28 years) has been with one club for a longer consecutive span.

Ned began his broadcasting career in Charleston, West Virginia, covering the American Association team there for five years. He joined Curt Gowdy in Boston for the 1961 season and has been here ever since, working with ten different partners in that time.

Martin announced the AL playoffs on CBS radio four years, and also did the

Ned Martin and Bob Montgomery

1975 World Series on television for NBC. The Duke graduate is also an accomplished football announcer, having done play-by-play for the Patriots (1965), Dartmouth (7 years), Harvard (6 years), and Yale (2 years).

Montgomery has been on the TV-38 crew for 6 seasons. He was a valuable reserve catcher for the Red Sox, appearing in 387 games during his 10-year major league career. He signed with Boston in 1962 and came to the majors in 1970. An arm injury forced his retirement during spring training in 1980.

Monty did a local radio talk show, as well as some work on Red Sox radio broadcasts, prior to joining the television team in 1982.

NESN is covering the Red Sox for the fourth year, with Martin and Montgomery handling the announcing chores for the third season. NESN rebroadcasts each of its Red Sox games as a convenience for its subscribers who may have missed the live telecast. Evening games are shown again at 11:30 p.m., while afternoon contests are rebroadcast at 7:30 p.m.

GIVE A TRADITIONAL

The notion of ordering a Screwdriver with rum rather than vodka may sound odd. But let it sink in a moment, because it makes a lot of sense.

You see, not all vodkas are aged for smoothness. Rums from Puerto Rico are.

They are the only rums that are aged by law for a minimum of one year. And if given proper time, a rum will become mellower and smoother.

So with maturity guaranteed, our rums not only add a fine, distinctive taste to orange juice, they're as right for tonic as any gin or vodka.

And they're as appropriate on the rocks or with soda as any whiskey.

Put us to the test. Who knows, you may start a whole new tradition.

And that can be a very refreshing experience.

Catcher	2	Third Baseman	5	Center Fielder	8
First Baseman	3	Shortstop	6	Right Fielder	9

SYMBOLS FOR PLAYS

Single —	Fielder's Choice Hit by Pitcher	FC HP	Passed Ball Balk	PB BK
Triple =	_ Wild Pitch	WP	Struck Out	K
Home Run	Stolen Base	SB	Base on Balls	BB
Reached base on error	E Sacrifice	SAC	Force Out	FO

The lower lefthand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower righthand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper lefthand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

FENWAY PARK GROUND RULES

Fly ball striking wall or flag pole and bounding into bleachers: Home Run. Fly ball striking line or right of same on wall in right center: Home Run.

Fly ball striking wall left of line and bounding into bullpen: Home Run. Ball sticking in bullpen screen: 2 Bases.

Batted or thrown ball remaining behind or under canvas or in cylinder: 2 Bases.
Ball striking bevel on the wall between the foul pole in left field and the corner back of the flag pole, and bounding into stands or out of park: 2 Bases. Ball striking top of scoreboard, also ladder below top of wall and bounding out of the park: 2 Bases.

Where you're never out at the plate.

PICK YOUR FAVORITE NUMBERS.

The crack of the bat, the roar of the fans, or the drawing of the lucky number. Red Sox baseball and the Massachusetts State Lottery. Two great games that are great to play.

Whether you're at Fenway or on the highway, it's easy to find the numbers you love to play. From Megabucks to The Numbers Game, every Lottery game's a hit. So after the Sox game, play the games that could make you a winner; all of the games of The Massachusetts State Lottery.

If you're as serious about value as you are about having fun, the all-new Mitsubishi Mighty Max is definitely your pickup. At only this new Mitsubishi is anything but just another basic compact truck.

For starters, Mighty Max gives you more standard features than Toyota, Nissan or Mazda. Also, consider its standard five-speed manual overdrive transmission, its rugged double-wall cargo box and independent front suspension. Proof enough that Mighty Max likes to play tough.

But when you add the comforts of a roomy sport bench seat, full carpeting, tinted glass and tilt steering all standard, you've not only got yourself a great drive... you've got yourself a great buy. And Mighty Max is still priced lower than Toyota, Nissan or Mazda.

The new Mitsubishi Mighty Max. When you're ready for some serious fun for the money, it's ready to kick up a little dust.

BRUGE HURST

Watching vintage Bruce Hurst, it's apparent that he's learned more than just something about pitching. He's able to take a pinch of forkball, a dash of fastball, and a table-spoon of curveball and mix them together into some kind of southpaw stew that sends opposing lineups heading into tomorrow starving for base hits.

In April of this year, after he'd dispatched the Toronto Blue Jays on two hits to give the Red Sox their first win of the season, Hurst described himself as a "trickster." That was a day he had everything working, in particular his trademark sweeping curveball, a pitch that looks like it starts its break up around Gloucester and finishes down near Sturbridge. When that pitch and the forkball are playing tag with the borders of home plate, Hurst can leave a half-dozen or more opposing batters standing in the batter's box like so many oversized Hummels.

Bruce alternately refers to his newest pitch as a split-fingered fastball or the "forker." He's not sure if there's a difference.

"Some say there is, some say there isn't. I don't think the name's important, anyway. I use it in changeup situations." Is it his "out" pitch? "I've used all my pitches to get outs," he says.

Enough outs, this year anyway, to get selected to the All-Star team for the first time in his career. American League manager John McNamara didn't use Hurst in Oakland; Bruce had a touch of tendinitis at the time, but was ready to pitch. He had, in fact, warmed up and would have been the A.L.'s next pitcher had the game gone longer than it did. Which kind of put Hurst in one of life's rarest situations — can't lose.

"I was ready to pitch. I would have been thrilled. Who wouldn't be thrilled? But it was nice to get the eight days rest."

The All-Star experience was basically a fun one for Hurst, though he didn't have a lot of time to reflect on it while it was happening.

"Everything went so fast. It didn't have quite the intensity level of the World Series, although the media attention was about the same. The best part was getting to know the other players. There were a lot of people there I'd never seen before except when they were on the other end of things."

Hurst was Boston's first pick in the June, 1976 draft. He signed out of Dixie H.S. in his native St. George, Utah, a tourist town located in the middle of the spectacular canyonlands scenery of southern Utah. He went right from St.

BRUCE HURST

George to the Red Sox rookie farm team at Elmira in the New York — Penn League. Bruce broke into professional baseball on a club that included Wade Boggs, Reid Nichols, Glenn Hoffman, Chico Walker, and Mike Smithson, among others.

In 1979 he was a combined 17-6, splitting his time between Winter Haven and Bristol. It was Hurst's first injury-free season as a pro; it was also his last spent exclusively in the minors. He spent parts of '80 and '81 with Boston and made the team to stay in 1982.

Current Red Sox coaches Joe Morgan and Rac Slider both managed Hurst in the minor leagues, Slider at Winter Haven, Morgan at Pawtucket.

"It looked like he'd be a good one," said Slider, now Boston's bullpen coach. "He had the things you look for in a pitcher — a fastball about what it is now, good rotation on the curve, and good work habits. He was a coachable kid

"It was no surprise when he made it. If anything, I thought he might have made it sooner than he did, but that's the way it is with young players — they all develop at their own pace."

Hurst was part of the 33-inning game at Pawtucket in 1981 pitching five shutout innings in relief. "There wasn't much question about his ability," said Morgan. "Am I glad the organization decided to keep him." Even in Triple A, Morgan remembered, Hurst demonstrated his flair for post-season pitching.

"We had a playoff game against Rochester," recalled Boston's third base coach, and when I told him (Hurst) he'd be our pitcher, he was about the happiest ballplayer you'd ever see. He pitched a great game too. We lost, 1-0, to Mike Boddicker."

Bruce's first complete season as a starter was 1983, when he was 12-12. The '84 season was basically a Xerox of '83 — same record, similar numbers across the board. When he turned one of those annual 12 wins into a loss in 1985 (11-13), the Big Question that every Red Sox lefthander must face sooner or later — Can he pitch in Fenway Park? — loomed over Hurst.

Coming into this season, Bruce was a respectable 31-27 at Fenway. This year, through July 28, he's 9-1 with three shutouts, two of them back-to-back. It looks like he might be able to pitch in Fenway Park.

That having been answered, the question remains — what next for Bruce Hurst, Boston's post-season pitching ace and all-star who can pitch in Fenway Park? Don't look for anything too dramatic.

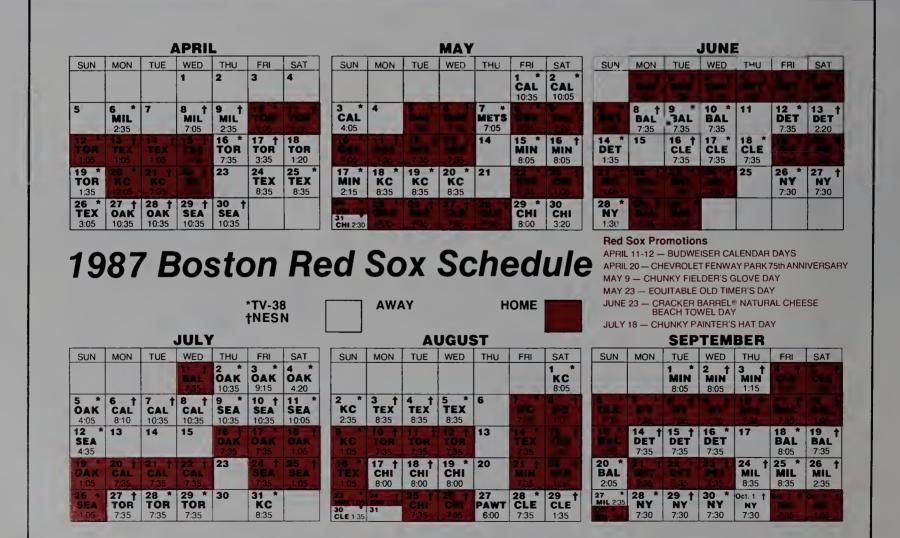

"I'm always looking for new approaches," he says, "but new pitches, no. You're not going to see me coming up with a screwball or a knuckle-ball. Basically, a pitcher can do three things with a baseball — throw it straight, throw it with a bend, and throw it a little slower than he usually does."

And Hurst does have a shot at winning 20 games, though that's not something in the front of his mind.

"The way I look at it is that I have to win ten (or whatever) before I can win 20. If I start looking beyond that, beyond trying to beat the team I'm facing in my next start, I'm not going to get to whatever my next number is."

No matter how high those numbers get, Red Sox fans can take comfort in knowing Bruce Hurst is posting them in Boston and not somewhere else.

NOW: A native Californian, Jim Lonborg hasn't gone far in distance from the scenes of his pitching triumphs but has travelled a million miles in life since that Impossible Dream season. Now he's Dr. James Lonborg, a practitioner of general dentistry, who makes his home with his wife, Rosemary, and their six children in Scituate and operates his dental practice in Hanover.

And the man whose pitching stood the baseball world on its ear 20 years ago now shares the managerial duties of a Little League tee-ball farm team with his wife. But Dr. Jim Lonborg hopes to move up in baseball management, at least to a level where pitching is part of the game.

"You get very busy in your life, particularly with six children. We get to Fenway Park two or three times a year, but I'm busy with my family, and I work in my dental practice a couple of nights a week. Of course I follow the club, listen to the games on the radio, and talk a lot with the kids about it. No, I don't really talk with patients very much about baseball.

"Things like old-timers' day are always fun, and I enjoy working with the kids, both boys and girls. A couple of our own children are involved. My oldest boy is into soccer but the two youngest boys enjoy baseball. My wife and I share the responsibility of the team. When I work she takes over. She gets a little confused at times, but the kids like to play for her."

MEMORIES: Not many baseball fans remember that Jim Lonborg pitched in the majors for more than a decade after the Impossible Dream year. "People kind of forget about you when you go to another league because mainly the coverage is not the same."

What many more fans will remember was the skiing accident in which Lonborg tore up his knee in December of 1967, an injury so severe it was feared for a time that his pitching career might be over.

"It's hard for me to remember about that now. Dr. John McGillicuddy did a full repair job on it and Buddy LeRoux was very helpful with the rehabilitation. I can and do ski now."

But Lonborg's pitching career suffered greatly from that injury. He fell from a 22-9 record in 1967 to a 6-10 mark in 1968, and three years later was traded to Milwaukee. He had a revival in his one season there with a 14-12 record and the best earned run average of his career, 2.83 in 1972, with 11 complete games and two shutouts.

Then, it was on to the Phillies where he pitched for seven years, hitting peaks in 1976 with an 18-10 record, and 1977 with an 11-4 mark, both times helping the Phils into the league championship series.

By 1979, Lonborg was getting a little long in the tooth by baseball standards. "I felt I was lucky to be on the team, I had been around and expected to be released in spring training to make room for the young kids. But a couple of them got hurt and I made it again. When they got healthy, I was gone."

Lonborg, who had earned a degree in biology from Stanford before going into baseball, had gotten married in 1970 and by 1979 was the father of five children. "I took a little vacation to think about my life and decided to go back to school."

He spent a year at UMass Boston and four more at Tufts earning his dental degree in 1983. "It was a lot of hard work, and getting started in dentistry was a struggle because initial costs are so high." By then he and Rosemary had six children, "three of each," to lend some urgency to the struggle.

Like most former pitchers, Jim likes to recall his hitting prowess despite his career .136 batting average in the majors. "I had three home runs, not too bad for a pitcher," he said, modestly neglecting to mention that he helped win five of his 22 victories in 1967 with his bat.

In fact, he ignited a winning five- run rally with a bunt single in the final game of the season. He pitched a perfect game for more than six innings finishing with a one-hitter in game 2 of the World Series, and tossed a three-hitter for his other Series win in St. Louis.

So while he might not be able to teach much pitching in teeball, he can always give batting instruction when Rosemary lets him be in charge.

OCTOBER

Milwaukee 1:00pm Home

If the entire history of this team could be said to have peaked in one glorious moment, it was this. A roar that seemed to come from the bowels of the earth engulfed the park, as the crowd (surely at least 40,000) rose as one with the chant, "Go! Go! Go! Go! ..." They never let up. Adair singled. Jones bunted for a hit. The possessed Yastrzemski singled making it 2-2. Harrelson grounded to short. Versalles came home with the throw; everyone was safe and it was 3-2. Worthington twice wild-pitched and it was 4-2. Smith rattled a grounder off Killebrew's knee and it was 5-2.

Haven, oddsmaker Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder posted their pennant hopes at a ludicrous 100 to 1. Then, on April 7, Williams curtly declared, "We'll win more than we'll lose." People smirked. But he made good.

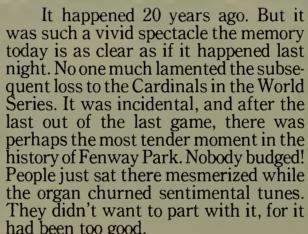

There were 162 dandy melodramas that season, and two of the most memorable at Fenway were the wrenching extremes of the weekend of August 18-20. On Friday, Tony Conigliaro was beaned. You could have heard a pin drop as they carried him off on a litter. Then on Sunday they clawed back from an eight-run deficit to beat the Angels, 9-8, on a grand slam by the laconic Jerry Adair. And something magic was uncorked. To that point the mobs, fearing a ruse and not quite believing, had held back. But with that moment, a kind of delirium seized the property. A national magazine called it "a cultural Revolution." Save for some brief, minor lulls, the fervor persists to this day.

It came down to the final weekend of the season against Minnesota. On Saturday, the last day of September, Yastrzemski's three-run homer won the game for Jose Santiago. The next day they were losing 2-0 when Lonborg led the bottom of the fifth with a bunt single down the third-base line.

was such a vivid spectacle the memory today is as clear as if it happened last night. No one much lamented the subsequent loss to the Cardinals in the World Series. It was incidental, and after the last out of the last game, there was history of Fenway Park. Nobody budged! had been too good.

That aura of goodwill has generally prevailed since, surviving all of the uproar and upheaval endemic to modern sport. They let pennants slip away in '72 and '74 but redeemed all that in '75 with an elegant gift to a dying Tom Yawkey. The last memories of the man have to do with his considerable glee that fall. He knew he didn't have much time left.

Again he had to settle for something exalted but bittersweet. Some say the World Series with the Reds was the best ever; a debatable point. Whatever, there will always be game six. In the list of Fenway's "frozen moments," the events of that chilly October night will forever hold their own.

There was Fred Lynn's stunning encounter with the center-field wall, leaving him crumpled on the cinder track looking quite dead. But he came back. It was the fragile Lynn's toughest

Just before his exquisite, gametying, three-run, pinch homer, Bernie Carbo fouled off what would have been strike three with a swing a wag later said had "all the power and grace of a suburbanite raking leaves." But he really crunched the next pitch, and he danced and clapped his way around the bases after it landed in the chaos of the centerfield seats.

The American Express Card. Don't leave home without it.

They could have won in the ninth when they loaded the bases with none out. But Denny Doyle thought third base coach Don Zimmer was saying "Go, Go" when he was really yelling, "No, No!" Such was the level of hysteria. No one could think, let alone hear. George Foster's perfect throw nailed Doyle ending the bid.

The Reds would have won in the 11th but Dwight Evans, running as if the Hound of Heaven were on his case, overhauled Joe Morgan's smash just as it was entering the right-field seats; the force of the blow almost carrying Evans over the barrier and into the laps of the customers. Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson later called it "the finest catch in base-ball history." Anderson's legendary capacity for overstatement aside, he may have been right.

So it came to the 12th with the game bearing toward its fifth hour and the clock grinding past midnight and Pat Darcy, the eighth pitcher used by the Reds, on the mound. Fisk hit Darcy's second pitch and it was hardly a blast, the ball describing a long, lazy arc as it stretched for a seeming eternity toward the foul pole in left, while Fisk frantically tried to wave it fair. When it struck the pole, the hallelujah chorus resounded over all New England.

A regrettable technicality required a seventh game when a picnic celebrating the glory of baseball might have been more appropriate. They lost, of course, because Bill Lee taunted Tony Perez with a blooper ball that Perez lost in the gloom, although we tend to forget Perez wouldn't have batted that inning had not Pete Rose rubbed out Doyle to thwart a double play. Doubtless it was all destined.

THE BARLY YEARS

There was never a dull moment over the balance of the seventies. There were controversies to accommodate every taste and disposition and the kind of baseball New England most enjoys, for all of its flaws. The home run was back in flower, reaching giddy extremes in a 1977 June series with the Yankees when they crunched 16 in three games, four in one inning off Catfish Hunter. A month later, on the Fourth of July, they hit eight against the Blue Jays, all with the bases empty. They hit 213 homers in '77, but got aced at the wire by the Yankees. And then there was '78 and the big lead that melted away in August and turned into ashes in "the September Massacre." However, most people forget that the Sox won their last eight games and 12 of 14 to force the special playoff with the Yankees.

With a last minute deluge of national media for the playoff with the Yankees, many of us watched the game from the left-field roof, so when Bucky Dent's pop-up glided toward the net you could have almost reached out and grabbed the thing. The view of the stunned crowd from the roof was fetching. But what I remember most about that brilliant drama was the last out. With Peter Gammons, then of the Globe, I was crouched in an aisle on the first base side, and as Goose Gossage was about to deliver to Yastrzemski, one of us said something to the effect that the hour had finally come, that Yaz was sure to deliver, and that all of the abuses were about to be wiped out. And the other agreed. Then Gossage pitched, and you could almost see the stitches on the ball as it popped from the bat of Yaz and arched toward the glove of Graig Nettles.

Trudging through the eighties, the glow seemed to be passing. Too much of the news from Fenway dealt with controversy, most of it bitter. There was the sense that the modern game, full of the struggle for money, was not compatible with the concept of baseball so revered at Fenway Park. The departure of Yaz, replete with all the "Yaz watches" and his tearful farewell, was diverting as was the artistry of the newest paragon of batting, Wade Boggs.

But there was no signal of what was to come in 1986 until the chilly April night Roger Clemens burst upon the scene by blowing away 20 Seattle

Mariners. It happened when few were watching, on a night when most of the region's sporting addicts were fretting over the Celtics' dealings with the Atlanta Hawks when no one expected much at Fenway Park.

The revival was instant, and it is likely that their bizarre misadventures in the World Series have only deepened the mystique. In 75 years, we have scarcely scratched the depth of Fenway's mysteries. Goofy as he may have been, Bill Lee was right on when he said of the place, "It is not a ball-park. It is a shrine where people come to worship." And rightly so.
